ABSTRACT

Narrative media music, music used for narrative purposes in multimedia such as film, television or computer games, is becoming one of the largest sources of musical experience in our daily lives. Though typically experienced on an unconscious and unreflected level, this kind of music actively contributes narrative meaning in multimodal interplay with image, speech and sound effects. Often, what we (think we) see is to a large degree determined by what we hear. Using Halliday's (1978) metafunctions of communication as a starting point, two short film scenes (from Jaws and The Secret of My Success) are examined, with a focus on the intermodal relationships of music and image. The examples illustrate how musical and visual expressions combine to form multimodal statements where the whole is certainly different than the sum of the parts.

The emergence of new digital media is having a profound effect on how we communicate, how we make meaning and perceive the world. Kress (2003) describes how the screen is replacing the book as the dominant medium for communication. The centuries-long dominance of writing is giving way to a new dominance of the image, which in recent years has led to an increased interest in exploring principles of visual meaning-making, literacy and learning through visual means (e.g. Kress & van Leeuwen, 2006; Lindstrand, 2006; van Leeuwen & Jewitt, 2001). The English word "communication" comes from Latin communication, which means common sense. The communication of the word means sharing the same ideas. In other words, the transmission and interaction of facts, ideas, opinions, feelings or attitudes. Communication is the essence of management. The basic function of management (planning, planning, staff, supervision and management) cannot be done effectively without effective communication. Communication is a two-way process that involves transferring information or messages from one person or group to another. This process continues and includes a minimum of a sender and a receiver to transmit messages. These messages can be any idea, imagination, emotions, or thoughts. Communication is a Latin word that means "to share". There are several communication modes available today. These include email, chat, WhatsApp, skype (conferences), etc. Effective communication makes people work easier and smoother. ProcessoCommunication is an ongoing process that involves mainly three components namely, sender, message and recipient. The components involved in the communication process are described below in detail: The sender or contact generates the message and sends it to the recipient. He is the source and the first contact. It is an idea, knowledge, opinion, truth, feeling, etc. produced by the sender and intended for reference. The message produced by the sender is symbolically encrypted as words, images, touches, etc. before transfer. This is how the encoded message is transmitted. The message may be transmitted by mouth or in writing. This is a process of changing the signals sent by the sender. After recording the message is received by the recipient. You're the last person li li orolla olos, oggassam lus esciga e etnematteroc ednerpmoc l e oggassam li ewevic oraitanised li eS. otavni otats 'A otavni iah ehc oggassam li e anetac of communication is obtained. Once the recipient confirms the sender you received the message and understood it, the communication process is complete. Collect any restrictions caused by the sender, the message or the recipient during the communication process. For example, an incorrect telephone connection, an incorrect coding, an incorrect recording, a recipient without negligence, an incorrect understanding of the message due to discrimination or inappropriate touch, etc. Types of communication of communication and communication non-communication occur through a verbal, verbal or written communication that convenes or convenes to the message to others it is called oral communication. Verbal communication is the use of language to transmit information verbally or in the language of signs. Verbal communication is important because it works well. It can be useful to support the non-verbal non-verbal communication any non-verbal communication, spoken words, conversation and writing language-it calls. Characteristics of the body or face. The insignificant communication uses body language, body language and facial expressions to transmit information to others. It can be used both intentionally and deliberately. For example, you may have a smile on your face when you feel an idea or a piece of interesting or interesting information. Open communication is useful when you are trying to understand the thoughts and feelings of others. The way of communication communicates refers to the communication that takes place through legal channels in an organization. This type of communication takes place between managers or employees of the same class or between high and bass and vice versa. It can be oral or written, but a complete documentation of this communication is maintained in the organization.
